

UPDATES^ England vs Slovenia Live Streams European Under-21 Championship - June 15, 2025

A pivotal clash in Group B of the 2025 UEFA European Under-21 Championship is set to unfold as England U21 take on Slovenia U21 on Sunday, June 15, 2025. The match will be played at the Stadion pod Zoborom in Nitra, Slovakia, and could prove decisive in determining who advances from the group stage.

Kick-off is scheduled for 4:00 PM UTC, which is 5:00 PM BST in the United Kingdom, 6:00 PM CEST local time in Slovakia, and 12:00 PM ET for viewers in the United States. With tournament stakes rising, both sides will be looking to assert themselves early and strongly.

Broadcast and streaming options for this U21 Euro showdown vary by region. In the UK, coverage is likely available via Sky Sports, though BBC iPlayer and UEFA.tv might also stream the game depending on rights agreements. US viewers can follow the action live on ESPN+, which carries a range of UEFA youth tournaments. For international fans, UEFA.tv is a reliable source for free live streams, particularly in regions without an exclusive broadcaster.

Match context plays a major role in this encounter. England U21, the reigning champions, come into the game with momentum after a solid 3-1 victory over Czechia U21 in their opening fixture. Another win here could all but guarantee them a place in the knockout rounds, particularly if results elsewhere in the group are favorable.

In contrast, Slovenia U21 are under pressure following a 3-0 defeat to Germany U21. A loss here would all but eliminate their chances of advancing, making this match a must-win. Expect them to come out with urgency and determination, while England will aim to control possession and exploit defensive gaps.

Live text commentary, match stats, and updates will be available on UEFA.com, BBC Sport, Sofascore, and Flashscore, making it easy for fans everywhere to stay informed in real time.
