

Role Overview:

The Medical Student Research liaisons play a pivotal role in fostering a vibrant research community within our medical school. As a liaison, you will serve as a vital link between your fellow medical students and the Office for Research, facilitating communication, collaboration, and engagement in research-related activities.

Responsibilities:

- Facilitating Research: Provide valuable insights and feedback to the Office for Research to enhance support for medical student research endeavors.
- Promoting Resources: Actively promote and communicate information about the office's events, messaging, and resources to ensure maximum participation and utilization by medical students.
- Organizing Meetings: Take the lead in organizing meetings for the Medical Student Research Liaison-led Series and Interest Group, fostering an environment conducive to networking, learning, and collaboration among aspiring researchers.

Qualifications:

- Currently enrolled as a medical student at LSOM
- Demonstrated interest in research, with a strong commitment to advancing medical knowledge and innovation
- Excellent communication and interpersonal skills, with the ability to effectively engage and motivate peers
- Organizational abilities with a knack for planning and executing events and meetings

Benefits:

- Gain valuable leadership experience and develop essential skills in communication, organization, and teamwork
- Access to networking opportunities with faculty members, researchers, and fellow medical students passionate about research
- Contribute to shaping the research culture and landscape within LSOM, leaving a lasting impact on future generations of medical students
